HOW TO TELL APART DIFFERENT LANGUAGES IN CYRILLIC FROM RUSSIAN

If you see this I with two dots, it is Ukrainian, not russian.

If you see this "y" looking letter with a curved line, it is belarusian, not russian.

If this "b" looking letter is ONLY found before an O, it is bulgarian, not russian.

If you see this "crossed out h" looking letter, it is serbian, not russian.

If you see this S looking letter, it's macedonian, not russian.

If you see this K with a line under it, it is Kazakh, not russian.

If you see this Y looking letter, it is mongolian, not russian.

And if you can't find any of these letters, it is probably russian.
